Hongkong Tides.

The Tide Table given below has been compiled by the Nautical Almanao Office in London from the result of the analysis of observations taken by means of an automatic tide-recording machine in the Water Police Basin at Tum Sha Tsui during the years 1887-8-9. The zero of the table is Low Water Ordinary Spring Tides, which has been found to be 2 feet below mean see level. To obtain the depth of water on the tide gauge at the Victoria Navai Yard add 5 ft. in., and on the gauge at Lamont Dock, Aberdeen, add 19 ft. 9 in. on the height given in the table.

The witness said he had seen five cases in which buboes were treated with the application of live frogs. The frogs, he said, were cut transversely and applied to the buboes, a bandage being passed round to prevent the frog from escaping. The first frog thus applied generally died within five minutes, the second lived for about ten or fifteen minutes, the third dying after about half an hour. The fourth and nifth frogs lived for about two or three and sometimes four hours. The patients appeared to find great relief from that kind of treatment. The colour of the frogs after application changed into greenish yellow. There were five cases treated in that manner, of which three recovered and two died.

Permit me to present quite another view of the case, to be bailed as a bright spot in the history of Hongkong, when a Governor, finding he has business with a neighbouring Viceroy, takes the practical step of calling and talking the business over. I have seen Governora come and Governors go, since the time of Sir Heroules Robinson, and the one thing .n: which has surprised me is the lack of interest and influence displayed by successive Hongkong Governors in their immediate saurroundings,-Yours etc., OLD FILE.

Tue death of Lieutenant Young of the Duke of Coin a l's Light Infantry at Lucknow, from the results of a fall at pole, suggests, says the Pioneer, some reflections which That he has been a very paughty boy are not the less useful, because they are obvicus. According to the account of the accident telegraphed from Lacknew, Li. usenant Young's pony crossed his legs and fell, but he was not going hard at the time and in ordinary chromestances faint injuries would not have been anticipated from such a misadventure. Unfortunitely the rider's solar topee was not secured by a chin strap and came off when the pony fell, with the result that the unfortunate officer's hend was left wholly unprotected, an a fatal concussion ensued. Humanly speaking the probabilities are that, had Lieutenant Young worn a chin strap, he would have escaped with a severe shock or at the most a concussion which would not have proved fatal. We are not aware whother there are any definite regulations on the subject; but surely in a game like polo it might be somebody's business why not that of the senior officer who chanced to be playing? -- to see that all the players wear solar lists properly secured by a chin strap. The strap is not an inconvenience but a positive comfort, and there could be no reasonable objection to the enforcement of such a practice.

THE SENTIMENT IN NEGROS.

A NECESSARY BYIL.

The Libertad, a native newspaper published in Bacolud, the principal town of Negros island, has a leader in its issue of 18th of Pobruary, in the course of which it says :- Negros island, like the whole of the Philippine country, at the announces ment of its glorious revolution, revelled in dreams, of independence, which is the auprome folicity of nations. The road was open for arriving at the desired goal, and the mation was convinced that it was obeying the destiny indicated by the providential note of the Supreme Creator. But was a mistake. There arose in the middle of the field a formidable barrier, and there was no help but to call a halt. Fisher Unwin. To the notable Builden of Greater Britain' series, Sir Alexander John Ar buthnot has added a complemently clever contribution. The man who blaced England where she is in the East to-day and who prevented France from hoing in the position which we now hold is, perhaps, the hest abused own on record, if we except Warren Hastings. Very fow, if any, of his biographers have had a good word to say for Clive. 'They have pictured him as fret ful, dictatorial, impulsive and untrustworthy, but the success of his career proves this summary of his character to be without foundation. Starting as a clerk, or writer, in the East India Company's service, Clive became a great General and a greater Statesman, and is, certainly, one of the most Interesting figures in English History. Sin A. J. Arbuthnot is strictly impartial and takes a broader view of the Herryof Plassey and Arcot, and in much better taste, than any of his previous and numerous biographers Arriving in Madras in Septfatber, 1744, it very soon became apparent that Clive's metier was not the clerk's desk, and, on the earliest opportunity, he volunteered for military service, in the carrying out of which his ready resource and undoubt- The run is surprising from the fact that ed courage soon won him distinction. When Clive returned to England in 1753, he had not only established his military fame by his brilliant defence of Arcot and the affair of Kaveripak, but had become not less celebrated as a diplomat. His enemies, however, were many, and ho was bitterly attacked, not only by many in England, but by his masters, the Directors of the East India Company. Even his auggestion that the Indian Dependencies should be governed by the Crown, brought a storm of vituperation on his luckloss head, and it is not until nearly a hundred years from the day when Clive died by his own hand at the age of fortynine, that the wisdom of his advice was proved by its acceptation. In his second visit to India be won for us the Province of Bengal, and in his third and last visit. lasting only about twenty-two months, he established a wise and settled form of Government, which, to-day, remains practically unaltored. Upon Chive's return for the last time to England, in 1767, he was, to all intents and purposes, put upon his trial, his defence being most masterly. The disgraceful Omichaud affair which is the chief blot in Clive's career and which remains a dishonour and disgrace not only to himself but to the British nation, is explained away by Clive himself, by the shaple proof ignoring and helittling his accusers. He declares that had the occasion arisen, he would have done it over a zain. The cheerful optimism of the man may be inferred from the fol- leaving for Hongkong. He is in poor lowing extract from the speech which he had addressed to the chairman of his company at the close of a long cross-exami schooner on which they were going to nation :- Am I not rather deserving of praise for the moderation which marked very great. my proceedings? Consider the situation in which the victory of Plassey had placed me. A great Prince was dependent on my pleasure; an opulent city lay at my mercy its richest bankers bid against each other for my smiles; I walked through vaults which were thrown open to me alone, piled on either hand with gold and jewels! Mr Chairman, at this moment I stand astonished at key own moderation.' Clive, ht has been said, was a firm friend but deadly hater. This may be true, but the recorded facts of Clive's carear do not seem to indicate any such attribute. On the contrary, we invariably find him praising his detractors—when they deserved it—as, for instance, in the case of Admiral Watson, who systematically thwarted and opnosed him, and of whom he remarks Admiral Watson's fleet surmounted difficulties which he believed no other ships could have done.' The only fault which Sir A, J. Arbuthnot can find in Clive, is his somewhat vulgar estentation and love of display, but we cannot forget that the days of Clive were in very sooth those when the sere pagoda tree was shaken to some purpose in the East. Strongly advising our readers to purchase 'Lord Clive and read it for themselves, we will close this review with an extract referring to the great man's personal courage and duel) the latter came close up to him and, holding his pistol to his head desired him to ask for his life, which Clive did. His opponent then called upon him to retract his assertions regarding unfair play, and on his refusal, threatened to Berlin, March 6. - A high official of the German Navy Department has informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that the appointment of Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of Emperor William, to the command of the East Asiatic squadron, had? been considered for months past and was March 4, 1901. On that date Constructor finally decided upon as being the most available, the Emperor desiring to show the American people that he is thoroughly friendly to them, knowing that Prioce Henry is popular in the United States. When the official referred to was asked whether the appoint was equivalent to the disgrace of Admiral von Diedrichs, he said Not exactly. If Admiral von Diedrichs had shown more tact last summer before Manila it would underiably have been productive of good results all around Our Government, unfortunately, was ad vised too late of a number of occurrences before Manila, none of which were really important: but they showed grave want of tact upon the part of Admiral von Diedrichs. The main trouble was that Admiral von Diedrichs was insufficiently informed regarding international naval usages in such a delicate situation. Consequently he continued naval movements, drill and searchlight practice as if elsewhere than in a blockaded port, thus arousing distrust upon the part of the Americans."

HOBSON'S PROMOTION.

RELATIVE RANK OF CAPTAIN AT THIRTY.

A dispatch to the New York Tribune from Washington, dated March 3, reads :-The President's nomination of Richmond Pearson Hobson to be advanced ten numbers, from No. 1 on the list of assistant naval constructors, is said by naval officers to constitute the greatest material promotion as a recognition of gallantry in the history of the naval service. It will make Hobson a Captain at the age of 30. His advancement amounts to 250 numbers in the line of the Navy, which is remarkable in comparison with the single number se- ing of the Millowners' Association was held cured by Admiral Dewey, eight numbers last evening, Sir George Cotton, Chairman, by Admiral Sampson and from three to five each by other officers during the war with Spain. When it was proposed to promote Hobson to the foot of the grade of Licutenant-Commanders the 'jump' amounted to about 150 numbers only. But under the nomination made to-day Hobson skips over all the Lieutenant- ommanders and goes nearly to the top of the Commanders' list.

The Plague Commission.

Before the Plague Commission, Surgeon General Harvey, Director-General, I. M. S. questioned upon the results of inoculation among the Khojas, said he had only touched the fringe of the subject and was unable to draw definite conclusions or gather 40-

Professor Haffkine maintained that he had devised a plan of producing and employing the supernatant fluid for inoculation with the object of redding the proportion of deaths to cases among the inoculated. The result justified his expectations entirely, but he did not take that as final confirmation of his theoretical grounds.

With regard to the presence of common microbes, they should be carefully avoided. but the conditions under which it happened that their introduction was not prevented were such as to secure the elimination of all possible sources of danger from it.

The Bombay Mill Industry. Bomb y, March 23 .- The Annual meet-presiding. The Chairman said the industry was not passing through a critical time. There was a steady decline in the value of raw material during the past two years owing to the large American crop last year, and the anticipated larger one this year resulted in a correspondingly continued fall in the prices of yarn and in such heavy losses to holders, both in India and China, as to have caused the absence of that speculative demand which so frequently acted as a buffer between the producer and the consumer by the holding of stocks which the spinner could not afford to finance and the consumer declined to buy in a falling market until the acrequirements compelled him. addition to this. Japan, which had increased her spindles by some 50 per cent. during the past two years, owing to financial pressure had to force her surplus production on the China markets at less than cost price, and the Shanghai mills which were started under the impression that the closing of the Indian Mints gave them special advantage over Bombay fared no better than their neighbours, and were selling yarn in their own markets for less money than it cost them to produce. We in Bombay not only had to face had markets but to fight against the plague for the past three years which by nearly closing our mills for want of hands during two to three months each season, and generally disorganizing our labour increased the cost of production at a time when under normal circumstances every effort would have been directed to economise owing to reduced estimates of the American cotton crop, and the consequent advance in the price of raw material. The yarn market is now much firmer, and there is no longer a desire on the part of holders to get rid of the yarn at prices below which it can be produced. This in itself should help the market and the reopening of the northern parts of China about this time should also tend to improve the position. The unsold and uncleared stocks of Indian yarn in China are still heavy being 130,000 bales against 97,000 bales at the same time last year, but in comparing these it must be borne in mind that in addition to her own large exports. 450,000 bales, for the year China has absorbed large quantities of Japan and local manufactured yarn showing that there is considerable room for expansion in her power to consume, expansion that must develop with the great opening up that is now going on. We can only hope that for some time at least there will be no great increase in the number of Eastern mills, and that consump. tion will quickly overtake the increased production enabling us again to secure a margin on the right side, but I think the time for handsome profits has gone, and in future we will have to content ourselves with more moderate returns on the capital
